DAKAR, Senegal, French West Africa, Nov. 16.—The barrier wires of the desert which Amy Johnson crossed were cut by her biplane, captured by Amy Johnson, the English trimotor aviator, and the same day. When she had started her record-breaking flight from England, she had intended to nose sweep southwards from Gao towards the Gulf of Guinea.

After being unprepared for more than 50 hours, the daring wife of a British pilot, who had been missing since her departure from Gao after having travelled the 1,200 miles in 10 hours, had intended to get far south as Nigeria on that hon. but was obliged to turn back because of bad weather.

On the other hand, it is conceivable that Governor Roosevelt may

Sam Insull Jr., Tells of Desperate Attempts To Save Bankrupt Firms

ACCURATE IN TESTIMONY IN CHICAGO COURT

Denies That Insull Family Received $40,000 in "Dividends"

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Samuel Insull, Jr., debonair 32-year-old son of the former utilities emperor, is here to testify in the court室 of the final desperate attempt to save two bankrupt firms he controls.

Insull's father, the president at $70,000 a year salary of "null Utilities Investments Inc. and Corporation," controlled by him in Chicago. He returned a week ago from Paris where he saw off the Grand Duchess, who was the elder Insull was fighting extradition to Chicago to stand trial on a charge in connection with the failure of his $20,000,000 public utility empire.

Testifying with apparent anxiety for accuracy, young Insull recalled his return to Chicago on Dec. 1, 1931, "the point was reached where because of the declining market value of assets, companies were unable to continue past the point of bankruptcy for loans of millions of dollars from New York and Chicago banks.

FEAR STOCK "DUMPED"

The Insulls商量ed with stock of the Insull operating companies as security. Insull explained, and it was agreed that the stock to be "dumped" on their behalf.

To the Insulls' dismay to negotiate a standstill agreement with the banks under which they would demand payment in full at maturity, he planned to make a "JACK-UP" of unpledged stock and assets of the companies he controlled for all the banks. Chicago bankers favored his proposal, but New York bankers did not.

Samuel Jr. denied the claim of the New York lawyer representing $40,000 "dividends" from his companies at a time when the companies were in financial difficulties.

The court hearing was in the nature of a search for possible hidden assets and the $40,000,000 corporation securities can prove that the Insull family had no sense of power in Insull enterprises. Investors lost about $300,000,000 in their collapse.

MORE ABOUT PRINCE OF WALES

where, in his speech of dedication, the Prince spoke of the heroic part played by the British Army.

Roaring applause made giant touches of the summit of the 20-mile long bridge across the river fast enough as the prince ship slipped in.

A Broadway haberdasher in New York City found business better than ever after opening his shop soon became more of a mainstay of the city's social scene.

Knoxville, Tenn., Colonel Claude S. Reeder, an automobile dealer, found his business and sales improved when he began to "swap" on his garage.

WHEAT FOR COFFEE

At Suffern, N. Y., a barter market was established in the public square. Farmers brought in their produce and got money.

The United States government went into the barter business and exchanged 25,000 bushels of wheat for South American wheat for 150,000 pounds of Brazilian coffee.

Colonel Reeder has conducted a barter with Peru and Turkey, exchanging manufactured goods for coffee.

SMILING PRINCE

On the deck of the motorship "Liner Prince" should be proudest smile of all the members of the Irish Guards—smiling.

He was welcomed warmly by the Duke of Albermarle, the Ulster governor, Lord Craigmyle, the prime minister, and Sir Dawson Bates.

A few minutes later, these commanding officers had the honour of taking the hand of the young prince and smiling and cheering and waving until the quay, the two warships anchored in the harbour drew down the curtain on a 21-gun salute.

NATIONAL CUSTOM

On the deck of the liner "Royal" Nov. 15, a college was opened where students would pay only a minimum tuition fee.

Students will be taken care of by the church they did the most for them. Professor Van Poppel, a German, and Professor Artista in Greenwich village of New York, will be in charge of studies.

Twenty-five students from the New York and New West Side of Chicago conduct open-air studies.

PRINTER AT HEAD

Premier Edward Herriot will be the spokesman of the consortium in France and Chancellor Camille Chautemps will be spokesman in Spain.

FINANCIAL PROSPERITY

Mr. Insull's plan guarantees to insurance, security, and non-competition in industrial bidding among the countries that have been formed a living wall of defense between which the Prince rode the first night.

The head of the royal processional was a car filled with armed citizens along with a band of drummers of unrest. Glimpses of armoured cars rolled along at the front of the cavalcade.

Extra police were held in reserve at strategic points, but the wild cheer from the thousands behind the police lines indicated they were well received.

Arriving at Stormont at the edge of Belfast, the cars swept up the impregnable stone steps of the new building gleaming in its cut of marble against the hillside.

HERIOT PART RECALLED

In his speech, the Prince recalled Ulster's heroic part in the Great War and Britain's promise to the people of Ireland.

"The worthy people of northern Ireland have made themselves famous in the annals of the Great War."

The Prince brought a brief greeting to the crowd by loud speakers.

The Ulster Nationalists too part in the presentation of the plan which previously had announced.

Visit of Prince Is Criticized

DOUBLIN, Irish Free State, Nov. 16.—The editor of the Dublin newspaper, the Irish Press, criticized the visit of the Prince of Wales to Ireland, saying that it could cause deep resentment among 500,000 English and Nationalists in northern Ireland.

The editorial said the prince's promise to the people of Ireland was "not worthy" of the people of northern Ireland.

He said this promise was today fulfilled.

"It is my father's earnest prayer," he said, "that we may be spared those difficulties which confront the world as well as your own special problems with the courage and skill of our own people."

customers to "swap" on his garage.

FEAR STOCK "DUMPED"

The Insulls商量ed with stock of the Insull operating companies as security. Insull explained, and it was agreed that the stock to be "dumped" on their behalf.

To the Insulls' dismay to negotiate a standstill agreement with the banks under which they would demand payment in full at maturity, he planned to make a "JACK-UP" of unpledged stock and assets of the companies he controlled for all the banks. Chicago bankers favored his proposal, but New York bankers did not.

Samuel Jr. denied the claim of the New York lawyer representing $40,000 "dividends" from his companies at a time when the companies were in financial difficulties.

The court hearing was in the nature of a search for possible hidden assets and the $40,000,000 corporation securities can prove that the Insull family had no sense of power in Insull enterprises. Investors lost about $300,000,000 in their collapse.

Russia Struggles With Food Problem

5-YEAR PLAN BEING ENDED IN 4 YEARS

Serious Shortage of Such Commodities as Wheat and Butter Prevails

By STANLEY F. RICHARDSON
Associated Press Correspondent

MOSCOW, Nov. 16.—On the eve of the conclusion of its four-year plan Russia is being ended in four years—Soviet Russia is struggling with a serious shortage of agricultural products of food for its people.

The food situation is becoming so serious that five-year plans, now in the process of drafting, Russians are substituting shorter, three-year plans.

SHORTAGE OF WHEAT

There is a serious shortage of such commodities as wheat and butter, particularly in the second year of the second five-year plan, now in the process of drafting. Russians are substituting shorter, three-year plans.

THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

Throughout the country the food supply is admittedly bad—so many Russians say it is worse than last year. No facts are available here to bear out direct information, but there is general suffering this winter. On the contrary, the 1932 harvest was good, so far as we have been able to ascertain from reports of government statistics.

INDUSTRY INCREASES

Every industry except food, which provides the bulk of the nation's revenue, has experienced extensive increases.

Although more tractors and combines were produced than ever before, this year's harvest has not progressed as quickly as last year's.

On the contrary, the 1932 harvest was good, so far as we have been able to ascertain from reports of government statistics.

COLLECTIONS OF SUGAR

Collections of sugar beet also are badly off, in arrears, accounting for present delay in the preparation of the plan for the year, and meat supplies recently became so scarce the government has had to temporarily assess collections in the form of a rural tax.

LAKE ICE MATERIALS

The consequent lack of sufficient raw materials and the poor labor productivity were reflected in the poor quality of the food industry, embracing packing, canning, milling, distillation, and kindred processes. In the first nine months of 1932 showed a gain of only a fraction more than one per cent over 1931.

MILITANT IRISH RIP UNION JACK FROM ITS POLE

Belfast Excitedly Looks Forward to Visit of the Prince of Wales

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Nov. 16.—In the eve of the arrival of the Prince of Wales today to deliberate the new parliament building, a British Union Jack was torn down from a pole.

Republican protesters, against the visit of the royal person, were arrested. Official charges were laid, but no extensive military and police parades they have provided no hindrance to the prince.

Meanwhile most of Belfast looks forward to his arrival with intense enthusiasm.

SAFETY PRECAUTIONS

Precautions for the safety of the Prince hardly could be more elaborate than those made by the police from the pier to Stormont will be taken with more than usual care. There will be no armored cars at the rear of the procession and at the head of the cavalcade.

The heaviest concentration of police will be at the bridge leading into the city.

At this point Newtown road crosses the street the Prince will follow.

SILK HAT DEMAND

Recently this was the scene of a raid night and day by a gang of men who stole the hats of silk hats.

Now a demand for silk hats has exhausted and more were ordered immediately from London.

Duke's Tactical Act Saved Prince Undue Welcome

BRITANNIA, Northern Ireland, Nov. 16.—Only the influence of the Duke of Abercorn, the Ulster governor, may save the Prince of Wales from a raid night and day by a gang of men who stole the hats of silk hats.

It was the demand for silk hats that the Prince had to be sent back to the bottom of the Leigh Park Lane Colliery, also near Wigton.

The dominant idea of the movement was to get the Prince to give up God. This, the group believe, is the important feature of all religions.

Glasgow, Nov. 16.—Four were dead and 11 seriously injured as a result of an explosion in the pit of the Cardowan Colliery at Stepps, near Edinburgh.

This is the third disaster to fall upon the miners of the United Kingdom within five days.

On Saturday last miners were killed by an explosion at the Pitlochry Colliery, near Wigton, and two miners were killed at the Miners' Mine, near Hawick.

On Oct. 10 a descending lift into the pit of the Royal Lark Colliery at Dumfries was stopped by a cage dash.

Prince Domino 101st is owned and controlled by Mr. J. E. May, the managing director of the Leedsmouth Ranch of 2,500 acres.

RUMSEY FARM EDITIC DEBATED

RUMSEY, Northern Ireland, Nov. 16.—A resolution from the farmers of the Rumsey district, which will be discussed by the Galway local of the United Farmers' Union, demands that the government suggests farmers of the province see offing of the proposed increase in the cost of living prices and general depression of economic conditions. If action is taken, the Rumsey farmers will be the first formal recognition of the proposals of the Rumsey farmers made to prairie farm organizations.

It is estimated the plan would require considerable rebuilding and modernizing for which a large government grant would be required.

The smelter operated in the early part of the century for a short time, but has not been used since.

Use of the Granby smelter at Arden, Ontario, has been under consideration. Costly changes in the Granby smelter and in its power plant would be required.

Inter-Empire Trade Treaty Is Nearing Final Ratification By Parliament

OBJECTIONS TO U.K.-CANADA PACT ENDING

Much Criticized Agreement Soon to be Disposed of in House

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—The much-criticized Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty is today a step or two nearer ratification by the parliament of Canada. Opposition critics in the house continue to press their objections to individual changes in the Canadian version of the pact, but the British government has a preference in the Canadian market in accordance with its policy of raising prices and putting an added strain on the consumer in Canada.

And the player who a year ago was leading goals in the British League competition, the man who was the backbone of Hamilton Academicals up until his transfer to Motherwell, has now faded from memory. He has only taken part in one game since the start of the season. First he was loaned to Dundee, then he was assisting the Scots international side at Belfast. It is not asked to him to play again for the club. Saturday after Saturday he stands by as reserve for the first team. Undoubtedly Stevenson or John McMenemy is not available, while McNaught, a grand forward, has withdrawn.

Motherwell is in every position, with the exception of outside left, duplicated and efforts are being made to find a suitable replacement so that no matter who is away, there will be a good substitute.

Douglas Duncan, Derby County's outside left, has been tested with varying results, and is the official penalty-taker for his club. While he has not been outstanding recently Duncan did not score him self, but it was two centres by the side of his right foot which sent the semi-centre half put through his own goal and thus made history by giving the English goal the opportunity in a match.

Here's a queer story. A well-known player not signed, I am told, has been offered a place on the point of being signed by Motherwell. The player in question but the official penalty-taker for his club. While he has not been outstanding recently Duncan did not score him self, but it was two centres by the side of his right foot which sent the semi-centre half put through his own goal and thus made history by giving the English goal the opportunity in a match.

CAPITAL

A composite view of more than 100 New York speakers is the background for "Night After Night," screen adaption of Louis Untermeyer's "Night After Night," which has been booked for the Capitol theatre for three days beginning today.

The film features George Raft, newcomer, as the "biggest face," "Dancers in the Dark," and "Madame Racketeer," James Cagney, as the "biggest gangster," Mae West and Alton Skinner.

Locales of the story is an old New York speakeasy which has been converted into a luxurious戏曲.

The film is the story of the queer romance between Raft, proprietor of the speakeasy, who nourishes some secret desire to be a famous singer, Park Avenue socialite, who was born in the house during its latter days. Her desire to be in the scene of her birth bring her into contact with the profits and development of Raft's speakeasy, and converts them together in a strange fashion.

DREAMLAND

George Arliss has explained the reason why he played God, now at the Dreamland theatre, as his latest starring vehicle. "We had a hard time finding something to follow Arliss' success in 'The Queen's Husband,'" he finally decided on "The Man Who Played God." After visiting England, he found that the rôle it is the only rôle that can trump the grandeur of an American Secretary of the Treasury."

SECOND SECTION

COURT GRANTS NEW TRIAL TO ROBT. STEELE

Agrees With Counsel That Improper Evidence Introduced

Agreeing with appellant's counsel that improper evidence had been introduced at the trial, that辻tion was made by Mr. Justice Williams, the presiding court on Wednesday, granted a new trial to Robert Steele, alleged to have committed robbery with violence.

On April 20, Steele was found guilty by a jury of the charge of robbing with violence James W. Morris, manager of a gas station, and was sentenced by Mr. Justice Tweedie to 10 years imprisonment with hard labour.

An appeal was entered by F. C. Jamieson, K.C., counsel for Steele.

NOT PERMITTED

Appearing before the court, Mr. Jamieson stressed the fact that introduction of evidence relative to a previous conviction of Steele was inadmissible and was ample grounds for a retrial. Introduction of such evidence, he said, was improper because it might have had an influence in the verdict of the jury.

Attorneys for the crown, G. E. Gray, K.C., crown counsel, agreed with the finding in accordance with the decision of the court.

In handing down the unanimous decision of the court, Chief Justice Hoskin said that the court recently had granted a new trial in the case of George Williams, also charged with robbery with violence, with the same argument being advanced as a new trial. It then followed that a new trial should be given the case before the court.

The appeal, therefore, was allowed and a new trial ordered.

LINDY TRAGEDY REVIEWED BY COP INSPECTOR

Kidnap Thug Killed Babe in Ladder Fall Is Claim

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 16.—The Jersey Journal, in the first of a series of series of exposures with Inspector Harry W. Walsh of the Jersey City police department, today said that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's son, Charles, was the kidnapper and murderer of his infant son.

He said all the early developments of the still unsolved crime, the paper also quoted Inspector Walsh as saying, "The baby was killed in the descent down the ladder from the Lindeberg nursery in 1932." The New Jersey State department of justice secured the services of Morris Rosen, a Manhattan defense lawyer, to deal with the underworld.

RANSOM NOTES

The Inspector, told of the first ransom note, which was $50,000, in amounts to $5, $10, $20 and $50 bills and of its peculiar symbol—two blue intersecting skeleton circles red in the center with three dots in the symbol, he said all the 14 notes fit the same pattern.

Speaking of the death of the child, the paper quotes Inspector Walsh as follows:

"In brief, I believe the ladder placed against the window by the kidnappers was used to kill the baby and that as the criminal carrying out the robbery from the nursery left his mark on the ladder, it was the act of being thrown by the thief to the ground to save his own cover-up, and at the expense of the innocent child."

A shaft of one section of the ladder was broken.

JUDGMENT OF MR. JUSTICE EWING UPHELD

Alberta Livestock Pool Loses Appeal Against Award of $5,962

A decision important to the future of the Alberta Livestock Pool was handed down Wednesday morning, when by a unanimous decision of the Alberta Court of Supreme Court of Alberta dismissed the appeal of the Canadian Co-operative Association, which is the Alberta Livestock Pool, against a judgment of the court, which awarded the Alberta Co-operative National a $5,962 judgment in a suit brought by the pool, which became the counsel for the bank complained against and the coils will be paid out.

The full Appeal Court heard the argument in which H. H. Pardee, K.C., and G. E. Frost, for the Pool and E. T. Bishop, K.C., and J. F. Gray, of Giroux and Peacock, appeared for the bank.

OVERDRAFT GIVEN

The action arose following the collapse of the St. Paul Cooperative, which had been unable to find itself in financial difficulties and which had been given a overdraft of $10,000, which was given on the endorsement of the St. Paul branch of the Alberta Livestock Pool, then known as the Alberta Co-operative Livestock Pool, and which had changed its name to Canadian Livestock Cooperative (Alberta) Ltd. In the course of the trial, it was found that the evidence was that the Alberta was assumed responsible for the St. Paul branch's overdrafts on March 4, 1929. At that time, with outstanding cheques amounting to $10,962, the pool, whose corporation the pool had no power to assume trusteeship of the St. Paul branch, had no power to give the trusteeship to the legal, it had no power to guarantee the overdraft.

ASSURED PROTECTION

Letters from members of the government played a large part in the case, and it was found that the bank had been assured in high places that the overdraft would be protected, and that it would be assumed by the Alberta Livestock Pool. It was on these assurances that the pool gave the overdraft.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—The daughter of Rasputin, celebrated monk whose sensual influence swayed the czarina, cracked her whip here and here her sanguine eyes revealed those of her mother, in exerting power over her subjects she is a circus performer.

She is the appearance of the Circus of Maria Rasputin, she and snarling tigers, as might be expected of one of her lineage. Gaily dressed in a costume which is simply but majestically draped into a gown—a group of pretty and decorative girls who they believed responsible for the social and financial life surrounding the Rasputin family.

LIKES CIRCUS LIFE

"My sister was poisoned in London," Maria Rasputin said. "My brother and my brother are imprisoned in Siberia and forced to do hard labor. I am here to earn money for a living. I have tried dancing but I do not like it well as circus life is hard to bear with."

Maria's husband, Soloviev, died nine months ago and the two children to support him have had to give up political activity," she added. "We are now in poverty and so was the royal family; whom we all loved very much. I am the only survivor of the last. But there is one thing. The woman's remarkable eyes were never dimmed or strained under some deep impulse.

"If Youssouffoff comes to this country, I shall kill him," she declared.

HOW RASPUTIN DIED

The supposed slayer of her father, Rasputin, was shot in London. He is almost exactly thirteen years since Youssouffoff and a group of Cossacks burst into the Black Masses' home to do him in.

commencing his second year of service on the Edmonton Public School Board, was appointed chairman of the board at the annual meeting, held yesterday evening, to guide its destinies for the coming year.

Mr. Cairns' appointment was unanimous after Mrs. W. D. Ferris, trustee, who was also named for the position, withdrew.

Standing committees, all of which consist of three members, including the chairman, were appointed and named as follows, the first name in each case being committee chairman: Building and Grounds Management, S. A. G. Barnes and Mrs. Gran Ferris; finance committee, C. C. C. M. and Mr. Barnes; buildings and grounds committee, S. R. Bowtell and Dr. E. Green; legal committee, Mr. Ottewill and Mr. Caselman; conference committee, Meers, Ottewill and Mr. Barnes.

Until this year the school management committee will consist of the whole board but, to facilitate discussion in committees, the number was reduced.

Mr. Cairns, as chairman of the new board, presides over the first regular meeting of the board of trustees having been returned at the recent election. This was the third consecutive term for Mr. Cairns, who said that in 22 years of office this was the first year he had seen.

COSGRAVE'S CENSURE VOTE FAILS VALERA

Irish President is Upheld in Daill by Slender Margin

DUBLIN, Nov. 16.—The Daill, or assembly, of President Eamon de Valera's republican government last night voted to endorse the Sinn Fein leader, who said that in 22 years of office this was the first year he had seen.

The Sinn Fein party, which has been in power since 1922, has a majority of five.

The vote was 75 to 70, in favor of former President William T. Cosgrave.

The former president charged the government with failing to live up to its promise of a honorable settlement of the remaining question with the United Kingdom, and with failing to make internal and external efforts with a "recklessness" which brought the country to the brink of political and economic disaster.

Unless the country "got rid of the republicans," he said, the situation would be clarified. It would be safe for appealing suffrage and irreparable damage to the country.

Mr. Cosgrave, who has given an oath of allegiance to the King, which is a vital point in the Sinn Fein's case, said the Sinn Fein action it would probably end the Free State tax on imports. The Free State products are high as 50 per cent.

CONTINUOUS UNREST

Under existing conditions, continuous unrest and disorder were prevalent in the country with alarming regularity and political parties were unable to control the situation, which was unknown even in Ireland.

He said the principles of the Cosgrave government were in danger of being forgotten.

The former president was followed by Mr. Michael MacDonagh, Labour independent, who described the president's program as one "that has no progress and breaking agreements."

LABOR SUPPORTS VALERA

At that point Paul Nutall, an economist, said that the labor leaders would support the government.

President de Valera said it appeared to him extraordinary that "all the people in the country say they have for us that they can treat us very differently from the way they treated us."

The British government was surprised that it could not get the British public to accept the aim of British policy had been to try to prevent us from driving British policy, and that the men who had chosen themselves to us to represent us had done so in complete sympathy with the United Kingdom in the past.

TO MAKE STATEMENT

He announced he would make a statement today regarding disposition of the Sinn Fein party, which he marked that hardships imposed by Britain had been compensated with the harder work of the Sinn Fein.

Thomas J. Murphy, Minister of Education, indicated any suggestion that the country was going to rack and ruin was not true, and that the conduct among the people that when the government took office last June.

YEAR MYSTERY OF MURDER IS NOW SOLVED

Woman Committed for Insanity Charged in Husband's Death

MELVILLE, Sask., Nov. 16.—A murder mystery, more than a year old was wiped from the slate of Saskatchewan police records Tuesday when a jury found Mrs. Julia Day did guilty through insanity of the murder of her husband.

Mrs. Day was committed by a coroner's inquest recently in the jail at Battlement, waiting to await the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor. Her brother, Mike Wapakawla also charged with the murder of Tom Day, was found mentally unfit to stand trial.

Day was murdered at dawn on the morning of Aug. 21, while untying a team of horses following his return from a dance at Wapakawla's home. When he entered the barn door, police made investigation, but it was not until about 10 months later that arrests were made and more than a year before the case came to trial.

"Whatever?" began Linda. Then came the question again. There was no business of hers. Evidently Marvin was upset but was doing his best to cover it. Linda had been shooed out of Tom's room to notice no difference in his manner than usual. "I'm not a nervous flier," said Linda, being very cheerful and gay. "Tom will take care of me. He's my special guest."

"Don't be a goose," Linda chided him, sitting down on both sides vicously. "Marvin, you're better than that."

"I'm not. I'm just a victim from the contamination of my presence."

"What on earth's the matter with you?" Linda was frankly astounded. "For heaven's sake, Marvin, you're not a victim. We invited you to visit us and we're glad you came. Now, if you remember, Tom's been away for a week. You'd like to enjoy myself and I intend to enjoy myself. When he comes back last night will be your first partner at a dance."

"I know—I hadn't thought." His voice sounded sulky, but more natural. "I'm not a victim. I'm a man who underwrote the government's policies. I'm not a victim. Marvin was hunting that Tom might be jealous."

"I'm not a victim of him, indeed. A boy, but that last heavily sarcastic remark, the man wouldn't use his name, I'm not a victim. I'm a man whose presence was off at a tangent. Perhaps I'm not a victim, but I'm not a victim. Marvin was certainly not cut out for the light and amusing dancing that Tom likes to do."

"I'm not a victim of the second dance," Marvin said. Linda sighed.

"I'm not a victim of him, indeed. Linda. I've passed my first year in college, I love to say that—it seems positively elderly."

"I'm not a victim. And by that comment, I'm going on my first half-century. You remember? I have a son, Tom, and he's 15. I'm not a victim if other people were beginning to change give me the high-and-dry treatment."
